

Editorial

Editorial Comment

Obiora Chukwuma Nwosu

Editor – in – Chief

The members of the Anambra State Chapter of the Nigerian Library Association are very much pleased to present the maiden edition of their professional journal to the world information community. Definitely, this is an intellectual contribution to the growth of knowledge in this era of globalization and information exchange. The articles published in this volume are mainly the edited copies of papers presented at the various monthly meetings and the 2005, 2006 annual general meetings (AGMs).

The papers provided information on various topics ranging from the impact of ICT on information packaging and dissemination to information needs of various categories of students. It is our belief that the stakeholders in the library and information profession will find this issue very useful for the advancement of the existing knowledge in the profession

The provision of virile Information Communication Technology (ICT) in our libraries and information centres constitutes a major input in information handling in this electronically-oriented age.

Anambra State Library and Information Science Digest is to be published annually. It is our hope to publish each volume in July every year.