

LIBRARY AND INFORMATION SCIENCE DIGEST

Volume 11

June 2018

Editorial

---

Online Edition of Library and Information Science Digest.

Ebele N. Anyaoku

Editor – in – Chief

Scholarly communication has evolved with the Internet being the major platform for dissemination of scholarly information and research reports. Many print journal publishers have transited to online publishing; providing access to their contents online. Electronic journals offer many advantages over print journals such as providing timely access to articles as they are published and offering remote access which is not limited by physical location.

The Nigerian Library Association, Anambra State Chapter has joined in the global practice of digital communication as we transit to online publication of our State Chapter journal: Library and Information Science Digest.

We present to our professional colleagues and readers worldwide, the online edition of Library and Information Science Digest (eISSN: 2672 – 4820). It is our pleasure to host the journal online. Past issues have also been digitized and hosted on the journal website. These actions have helped to create visibility for the journal and also ease of access to the numerous articles published over the years.

We thank our past contributors for their sustained support for the journal and also invite other librarians and information scientists to consider the journal first choice for the dissemination of their scholarly reports. Welcome on board!